

Writer's Block Party In-Real-Life Meet Ups

$50 for One Hour Session, up to 6 participants

There's support, community, discussion, experimentation, spirited conversation and sharing and there's absolutely no pressure- Writer's Block Party In-Real-Life Meet Ups are here for all your motivational, inspirational writer needs.

WBP Meet Ups are gentle, respectful, fun, interesting and invigorating. We incorporate themes and examples and the individual experiences of our participants.

What WBP In-Real-Life offers:

- strategies geared toward making/keeping our own commitments around writing practice
- a strictly voluntary sharing policy for comfort and ease of participation on whatever level feels right, at any given time
- information about relevant community events and resources
- ideas and outside perspectives on our individual writing projects in a compassionate, "on the same team" kind of way
- discussion about the creative process and sharing our diverse experiences
- generation of plans about next steps and possible directions for ourselves creatively
- stretching our writing muscles, trying new things, and thinking about things in new ways in a totally supportive, experimental atmosphere
- connecting with others about our craft

Do any of these needs resonate with you? Can you think of a few friends that might want to join you?

Contact me at nora@illuminousflux.com to set a date, or just to get more information. I am flexible with times/days/locations and I can tailor sessions to the group's particular needs.